DRAPERY ROW

On the line of a medieval street, Drapery Row allows picturesque views of the backs of High Street buildings.

Drapery row was the southernmost road of the Rookery Shambles and little remains now of the street except the Bushel Public House.

SIGNIFICANT

General Overview

Drapery Row is now a service yard and rear access for High Street buildings and The Guinness Shopping Centre.

Townscape Elements

Uninspired rear elevations of the Rookery to west and the backs of High Street Buildings and yards to East. Significant elements are the C17th wing of The Crown & the buildings and curtilage walls of the Bull Public House.

Archaeology

Within the area identified in the Suffolk Sites and Monuments Record as the medieval town of Newmarket, though probably archaeologically worked out.

Streetscape Enhancement

To be added if appropriate after public consultation.
